“ Dorothy, I was saddened to read tonight that Bud had just passed. I was researching his niece (I believe she was) Barbara, that I had played with as a childhood friend. I never knew what became of her after we got older. I was trying to see if she might still live around here. I don't know if she even remembers me. This would have been when we were in grammar school.

Anyway, I remember Bud, this was before y'all were married. He was always smiling and he would tease Barbara. He once told her there were no girls named Barbara in Korea where he served in the Army, but there were some named Judy. He said you have a good ole American name. Barbara smiled. He grinned at me. He was always laughing and having fun.

I'm so sorry for your loss and you and your family are in my prayers. You would remember me as Judy O'SHIELDS Chapman. My husband Horace passed away in 2011. I remarried three years later. I'm Judy Conrad now.
