“ Doug was my step-father and I've known him my entire life. He always treated me like one of his own kids and did so much for me as a parent figure. One of my best earliest memories with him was when I was a little kid, he would let me hold his hand and flip myself through them. It was really fun for me and he would let me do it until his arms hurt. When I was in elementary school he was often the one who drove me to and from school, and when I was a teenager he would drive my friends and I to concerts, selflessly picking us up late so we could stay and have fun. He was the reason we got a computer in our house early on, and so I was able to gain computer literacy from an early age, which became priceless for me later on. I always knew I could talk to him about anything or any problem without fear or judgement, and he would help however he could. His love and devotion to my mother is also something I am very grateful for. Our family will not be the same without him, but we will carry his memory and love with us forever.
