“ Randall built several buildings for my company, Peoples National Bank, when he worked in the construction industry. After Randall retired, I talked him into getting his contractors license so he could help me renovate three rental houses which were in pretty bad shape. They were a lot of work, and Randall and I spent a lot of time together figuring out how to solve one problem or another. He was a great friend to me, my brother Alex, and my son Rob. We all loved him and we're gonna miss the heck out of him.
