“Joyce Ann was my older cousin, she was always good to me, she had a loving heart. I remember her working at the old library in Central that was once a school and now I believe it to be apartments but sometimes she would find wounded pigeons and she would take them home and care for them till they got better and her and her brother Larry would build a big house for the birds and she would train those birds to do different tricks , I loved going to their house to watch them, it was like going to a show. Joyce Ann stayed with my papa Fant's sister most of her early years and helped our Aunt with her chicken farm and she was my Aunts favorite but we all went to Church together and my Aunt would have Joyce and Deborah go to the altar to pray , they told me it was so they would be saved so I always went with them thinking if they're going to Heaven then I'm going too.i know she made it it and when I think of her with her parents and siblings I know my Aunts family circle is complete and I am happy, as we get older that is our biggest dream and knowing how happy she was to meet her daughter Karen who was stillborn for the first time and to be with her daughters Sheri and Jessica again how happy they must be I I bet Joyce Ann is dragging her 3 daughters all over Heaven telling telling them who everyone is, I can only imagine how happy they are and how sweeter Heaven must be.
