

Lynn Marie Smith ("Llyn")

July 23, 1970 - February 12, 2024

Lynn Marie Smith ("Llyn")
Greenville, South Carolina

Lynn Marie Smith ("Llyn"), 53, of Greenville SC, passed away on Monday, Feb. 12, at her home.

Born in Takoma Park, Maryland on July 23, 1970, Llyn was the daughter of the late Bill "Smitty" Smith and Imogene "Jean" Dodgens Smith. She was mother to Jeremy Cain Thomas, her beloved son who predeceased her in 2009.

Llyn spent the first year of her life in Maryland before the family moved to South Carolina. She deeply loved the natural beauty of the Upstate, especially the mountains, and knew all the best backroads.

She graduated from Easley High School, later trained in CAD drafting at Greenville Tech, and was a quick study at everything she undertook. But at heart, Llyn was an artist who spun straw into gold. She had the gift of repurposing random materials into striking jewelry, clothing, sculpted figurines, window frame paintings- whatever her very creative mind suggested.

Llyn loved classic British ghost stories and films, her black cat Vlad, morning glories and moonflowers, and her backyard birds. She was an accomplished guitar player and (secret) songwriter.

Survivors include her mother, Imogene "Jean" Smith, who lives in Easley, long-time significant other, Benjie Gillespie, of Greenville, sisters Leslie Smith and Lisa Pomeroy, both of Greenville, and treasured family members Sandra Thomas of Pumpkintown and Leesa Rush of Simpsonville.

In addition to her son Jeremy, Llyn was predeceased by her father Bill Smith of Easley, by Jeremy's father Mitchell "Mitch" Thomas of Pumpkintown and Jeremy's grandfather, Mitchell "Mickey" Thomas, also of Pumpkintown.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to Open Arms Hospice of Simpsonville.

A private remembrance will be planned at a later date.

Mountain View Funeral Home – Pickens Chapel is serving the Smith family.

“ Lynn was my childhood friend from church. I would go to her house after church and we had our own little kingdom across the road from her house. She imagined a church and a mill into a vast English country side for us to play. She was the most imaginative person I have ever known. My childhood was made more rich just by Lynn being her creative/genuine self. I always think of you when I drive past the house, mill and church and my heart is fill with love and joy. Love you always by friend

“ I've known Lynn since we were little kids & I'm deeply saddened by her passing. She was always a good friend. I just wished we could've stayed close friends throughout but life has a way of taking people in different directions. She was a beautiful & sweet woman inside and out. I'll always remember the good times we shared on the mill hill together. Just happy to know that Heaven has received another Angel through its Pearly Gate's & that her suffering has come to an end. Hopefully we'll all be reunited with her 1 day in Heaven with her. You all are in my thoughts and prayers.
