“ I met Mr. McCollum only once—the day that Deep South Defense opened. His son Eric, along with my son and two others were beginning this new venture, and we parents were there to support our sons.

He was an amazing man—proud American veteran, grateful Christian and very proud dad. I will never forget our long conversation—mostly about his son. The biggest part of that conversation was not just his pride in the boys’ new business venture, but his joy in telling about his son’s journey to salvation. What a wonderful blessing to hear this father’s concern for the spiritual welfare of his children. It was inspiring—such a reminder that one “seemingly “ chance encounter with a stranger could leave a lasting testimony for the LORD!

My condolences to Eric and his wife and other family members as they say their goodbyes, and may they experience GOD’s perfect peace today and in the days to come.

“ We have such great memories from days gone by. Craig was like a brother to Lew and me thou we lived far apart. He was such a godly example to his family and to so many others. He always would ask me if my kitchen window still leaked 😊. So glad he's in Heaven now with no more pain!
